Signing of the Declaration of Independence

The Second Amendment©

By Robert Beierle © 2014

I think we can pretty much all agree that the signing of the Declaration of Independence was a very important event for this country and the world. At least I would hope so. And you would think . . . or maybe you would hope . . . that most people would understand that the moment in time that picture represents would never have happened without the ability of men and women to defend their beliefs. They had noble ideas such as believing that it's not the government, but it's the people, who should be free to decide what is in the best interest for themselves and having the freedom to say what they want and to believe in what they want. None of it would have been possible without the ability to back up and to defend these principles. And this was achieved with the musket . . . a firearm. That is reality . . . a truth. And it was so important to the founding patriots that they believed the right to bear arms was an essential component to ensure and to protect America that in the Bill of Rights they made it the Second Amendment . . . right underneath free speech! Because without the Second Amendment there is no way, when evil rises its threatening head, to guarantee any of your other rights and freedoms. Your first right . . . freedom of speech . . . is the right to say what you want to say without fear of the government intimidating you, threatening you, or imprisoning you for doing so. And your second guaranteed right . . . the second amendment . . . which is more than just a right . . . it's an obligation . . . is to be able to defend, to protect and to ensure . . . that evil . . . whether it comes from across the sea, whether it comes from within our own borders or whether it comes from those in power . . . can not overpower you and take your rights, your freedoms, or the ability to protect yourself away from you!

I don't have an issue with opposing viewpoints that are thought out, well debated, and use facts and logic to try to persuade people's way of thinking. But when there is a group of individuals . . . extremists . . . whose ideas, beliefs and principles are not founded in the reality of the world, and you give these radicals the authority to make laws over you, to restrict you and to prohibit you from a logical, productive and meaningful way to address frightening circumstances that are facing you and your family, then collectively, as a people, we all should have an issue with such individuals. But evil, and yes, I'm using the word evil here, has a way of sounding completely logical and persuasive to the unexpected mind. Political correctness is evil. Because of political correctness we have open borders. Now anyone with an ounce of common sense, with the ability to think rationally, would understand and agree with this. In a time of crisis, in a time of war, at a time of rampant disease, for a country to shut down its borders to protect its citizens is not only logical, is not only the right thing to do, but it is the necessary thing to do. That is a mature, rational, necessary conclusion to the reality of the world we live in. What does political correctness tell us? A federal judge ruled that our border is racist . . . discriminatory. A politician said that everybody in this hemisphere in which we live has a right to come into our country. And a political party, in order to secure its base and create more illegal voters, turns a watchful eye away from protecting its citizens just so it can get more voters, to stay in power and to satisfy its base. What is the outcome? Every day we have allowed and continue to allow criminals, rapists, pedophiles, murderers, terrorists and disease carrying individuals to come into this country illegally without any fear of repercussion. American citizens have been murdered. American citizens . . . women . . . have been raped. American citizen children have been molested. And now, children in this country are getting sick in every state with a respiratory disease that has been brought across the border to the point where it is now causing death. If you oppose these illegals coming into this country unchecked you are branded by liberals, by the politically correct crowd, by other illegals who are in this country, as being a racist. So it is now racist to try to defend, to try to protect, that which is legally yours. Don't tell me political correctness isn't evil. Children lie sick in hospitals, American families have been ruined due to rape, murder, drunken drivers, because we as a nation refuse to allow logic to dictate our policies.

We are told by these same individuals, liberals and the political correct crowd, that you as an American citizen should not be allowed to have a gun to protect yourself. Keep in mind without the musket there would be no America. There would be no life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Democrats and liberals desire to take your right to bear arms away from you all in the name of the better good, all in the name of political correctness, because their contention is that to remove the ability for honest, law-abiding citizens to own firearms, this world would be a better, safer place. And they back this statement up every time evil, no matter the age, no matter its nationality, no matter its gender, strikes out and kills innocent, hardworking, law-abiding Americans. And now throw terrorism into the mix. We have had and will continue to have acts of terrorism perpetrated on citizens of this country. And the liberals and the democrats and the politically correct crowd are still demanding that you and I and all Americans give up our right to have firearms, leaving us defenseless to protect our families.

I was listening to an interview . . . and I'm not going to name names here . . . but it was after this most recent beheading on American soil. A female reporter was asking an individual on the side of the administration and the ruling party what we can do to defend ourselves against people . . . terrorists . . . who are trying to kill Americans. I'm not going to go verbatim, but here's a rundown of what was said. Be aware of your surroundings. Have a good go-bag ready. Always have escape routes planned. And the female interviewer was getting a little annoyed, because perhaps she was liberal and maybe she didn't believe in firearms, but the reality of the world was causing her to question, perhaps a philosophy that she believed in, but now this was not a philosophical question she was asking. She was looking for an answer for how she could protect herself. But everything this individual was suggesting to her and to all of America had to do with running away from the threat. Is this now how we deal with evil in the United States of America? We run away? Is this how you protect your family? Is this how we are training the mindset of our country . . . that when we are confronted with evil we should run away? The individual finally said to the reporter . . . well maybe you should have a good strong flashlight that you could use as a weapon to blind your enemy . . . allowing you more time to run away. I'm not kidding. Look, guns are already in the world. You can't make them all go away. You have to accept and face the reality of the world you live in and make proper and right decisions based on that. When evil has a gun, you make sure you have a bigger gun. When evil has a knife, you use your bigger gun. When evil starts killing, you kill back.

You defend what is yours. I know that's not politically correct, but political correctness has never won a war, has never stopped evil and has never stopped a murder. Again, the reality of the world we live in.

And of course, we all learned such an important lesson recently. See, Obama has no problem with people illegally coming across your property, hurting you, and destroying your things, as so many farmers, business owners, and homeowners have had to experience over the years living on border towns between the United States and Mexico. But when one individual (this really did just happen) jumps over Obama's fence . . . his personal border . . . and runs across his lawn, and comes into his house, then all hell breaks loose. Now if Obama and the Democratic party truly believe the line of BS that they have been cramming down the American people's throats about people coming into this country illegally and how it's our obligation and our duty to take care of them, and if we don't we're not good Christians . . . their words, not mine . . . then to be consistent with their beliefs, should not the president and first lady have opened their doors to this man who came on to their property illegally? Shouldn't they let him live in their house, feed him, clothe him, move in all his family and all his relatives, school him . . . educate him and never deport him? No, what happened? Oh, guns were used to protect the president's family and his property. Lawyers are used to prosecute and to seek jail time for this illegal trespasser. And of course, this individual was NOT given a court date, a pat on his head and released into the general public with a promise from him that he would show up at his appointed time and naturally never be heard from again, as is the case with illegals illegally strolling into America. No, this individual was thrown in jail and will experience the full penalty of the laws he broke. If this is how Obama treats somebody who illegally trespasses onto his place, should he not extend that same ability to go after illegal trespassers to the rest of America? Why of course not, that's not what liberals do. The laws they pass are meant for me and you and not for them. Welcome to your liberal America in which we now live, where hypocrisy, political correctness, and the desire for one political party to stay in office is going to be the ruin of this once great America.

Now the fun part. Dorothy and I were afforded a great opportunity to meet Justin Moon, the CEO of Kahr Arms and Thompson Industry. And yes, we also met his brother Sean and their families. They are great Americans, great patriots, and when it comes to Justin, a great manufacturer of damn good guns. I persuaded Justin to give us a few written words about why he designs his firearms the way he does. Not that I wouldn't take Justin at his word, but I went out and purchased a PM9 Kahr 9mm and I'm going to tell you, I fire tested it, and I now use it as my carry. You've got to understand, I was raised with firearms, as were my boys and my wife. I've had and used everything from Smith and Wesson, Ruger, Taurus, and so many more, and now this is my carry of choice. This is important for you people reading this . . . these are dangerous times in which we are living. The wolves are here. They are knocking on our door. You better carry and you best train those whom you love on how to defend yourselves, and not with some stupid flashlight. I was carrying a 380 . . . because of its size . . . getting in and out of the truck . . . doing deliveries. It was a comfortable carry. What Mr. Moon did was to design a line of handguns to be smaller, compact, with an easy trigger action, and an unbelievable accuracy so you can carry a higher caliber handgun with comfort and ease. His 9mm and 40mm are smaller than most of his competitors models of the same caliber. They're comfortable as a carry and yet give you the advantage of having more knockdown power. I even picked up a couple of extra extended magazines to carry on the side, which is what Mr. Moon recommended, so your carry can remain small and compact, and you still have larger magazines if needed. Here are a few words from Justin Moon about how and why.

KAHR ARMS PISTOLS

by Justin Moon, President & CEO Kahr Arms

Kahr pistols have always been designed, from the ground up, to be the best concealed carry pistols available. From our start in 1995, when we shipped our first pistols, Kahr Arms has been a recognized leader in providing innovative 9mm caliber pistols in sizes previously seen only in minor calibers. Since then we have added 40 S&W, 45 ACP and even smaller 380 ACP to our Kahr pistol line. Kahr pistols have proven themselves with reliability and accuracy in real-life situations for nearly two decades of continuous production and growth. There are no other pistols, of similar size in relation to caliber, that have had such a long history of proven performance.

When gun owners think of defending themselves and their families, their natural instincts guide them to a system that has a proven record of performance. This is exactly what Kahr Arms offers today! New guns with old names are still new guns and only the test of time will prove their worth.

Kahr pistols are designed with a unique, double-action-like trigger pull. The trigger stroke is consistent and smooth like a customized and tuned revolver. In our design process this type of trigger was selected because it is the ideal system for a self-defense pistol. Self-defense pistols have a number of considerations that target pistols do not have. In self-defense situations, the shooter will be under stress with adrenaline pumping. Consequently, the shooter may lose fine motor control of the fingers which makes the Kahr design best for both safe carry and accurate shooting during stressful situations. This is highly preferable to triggers that are too short or light. Accuracy and weapon control are absolutely required in self-defense situations. The smooth revolver-like trigger enables accurate fire at a rate that is controllable for self-defense applications.

From its inception, Kahr Arms has designed pistols that are dimensionally smaller and thinner than any other pistol of the same caliber. For example, the Kahr 9mm is only .9 inch thick at the slide and on the grip frame. The pistol is extremely comfortable to carry and conceal. Even with pistol strapped to your belt, you can comfortably sit in a car with bucket seats. The Kahr pistol advantages in concealment include the magazine and base. We have designed the mag bases to maintain a dimension that approximates, and does not increase, the size of the magazine. Manufacturers that have recently entered the concealed carry market have produced magazine bases which fit the grip frame of their small pistols. In effect, they made a small gun with a big magazine. This does not make sense for concealed carry since spare magazines also need to be concealed.

Each Kahr pistol is built with materials of the highest quality. Kahr's components are manufactured to the tightest possible tolerances. As a result, all of our pistols are superbly accurate. Kahr pistols will shoot as accurately as the shooter's skill and ammo quality permits. A trained shooter with a Kahr pistol can make hits on a man-sized target even at 100 yards. Because of our quality, we at Kahr take pride in each and every pistol. Kahr has consistently strived to provide excellent customer service and support during the past 20 years and remains committed to superior customer service for years to come.

Over the years many competitors have, in one way or another, borrowed from the Kahr design and specifications. Nevertheless, Kahr has been, and continues to be, the leader in manufacturing concealed carry pistols. We have continuously added and up-graded our offerings of high-performance pistols. Why buy an imitation when you can have the original reliable Kahr concealed carry pistol?

Kahr firearms are proudly made in America. We are pleased to be moving our headquarters to Pennsylvania.

I just want to make sure everybody realizes there is no compensation for what I said about the Kahr handguns. There was no compensation in any way taken or given for Justin Moon to write this piece. I just wanted to share with you and to get you thinking in the right direction to the understanding that the wolves are at our door. This is not a time for political correctness, this is not a time for liberalism, this is not a time for democrats. I am not a republican. I am a patriot. However, I must exist in the reality of the world in which we live. When voting for politicians you are voting for either bad or worse. If you vote for any liberal, any democrat, in this upcoming election, you are voting for more of your rights to be taken away from you, for more government control of your life, more regulations, more taxation, and for a greater chance for you to lose your second amendment right to keep and to . . . bear arms! To vote for a republican . . . honestly . . . it's not all that much better. But it will slow down the growth of government . . . slightly. It will slow down the conquest of the government to control your lives. And one thing it will do . . . at least for now . . . keep your right to have guns, to defend your family, your loved ones and all that is near and dear to you, against evil. This upcoming November, no matter where you are, vote with the understanding and knowledge of the world in which we really live and the dangers that are looming at your door. And vote for those politicians whom you may not agree with on so many issues, but you have a gut feeling they may help to make this world . . . our world, our country, your family, your neighborhood, a safer place.
